1. PURPOSE

- 1.1. To appoint a panel of SANAS-accredited laboratories to render laboratory services for the Department of Forestry, Fisheries, and the Environment on an “as and when” required basis for a period of three (03) years.

2. INTRODUCTION AND BACKGROUND

- 2.1 The Department of Forestry, Fisheries, and the Environment (“DFFE”), employs Environmental Management Inspectors (EMIs), to undertake compliance and enforcement of the National Environmental Management Act (NEMA) as well as the Specific Environmental Management Acts (“SEMA”)s)
- 2.2 To give effect to this mandate, EMIs have investigation powers that entitle these officials to take samples to prove the commission of an offense.
- 2.3 In recognition of the specialised skillset of EMIs to investigate environmental crimes, the DFFE entered into a Standard Operating Procedure (“SOP”) with the South African Police Services (“SAPS”) in 2012. This SOP essentially allows EMIs to undertake environmental criminal investigations on behalf of the SAPS.
- 2.4 As a result, the SAPS regularly refers cases to the DFFE for the investigative service to be undertaken on behalf of the SAPS.
- 2.5 In all criminal investigations which may lead to a prosecution and conviction, the burden of proof lies with the State to prove whether an offense was committed beyond all reasonable doubt. In waste and pollution cases, this entails evidence to be submitted which indicates whether or not contamination or pollution exists as well as the degree thereof. This can only be done in most cases by accredited laboratories by following very specific analysis methods.
- 2.6 Given the nature of investigations undertaken by EMIs, the following are important factors that must be taken into account when samples are taken:
 - 2.6.1 The sample needs to be taken as soon as the EMI becomes aware of the problem.
 - 2.6.2 Samples cannot be taken on one day and analysed several weeks later since many of the pollutants in question degrade rapidly. Therefore, if delays between the taking and analysing of the sample are experienced, the sample becomes worthless and the EMI would have lost crucial evidence. This ultimately means that those who caused the damage to the environment will never be held accountable.

- 2.6.3 Samples cannot be analysed by individuals/ institutions who do not possess the relevant accreditation. In addition to the above, there are certain requirements when presenting samples in a court, namely, it is necessary to follow a specific process as outlined in various laws i.e., chain of custody. This ensures traceability throughout the process, namely, from sampling to analyses and the presentation of the evidence in court.
- 2.6.4 The Forensic Science Laboratory of the SAPS is sometimes unable to do many of the environmental analyses required by EMIs, including but not limited to microbiological analyses, water quality parameters, phenols, diesel- and gasoline-range organics, and quantified analyses of trace elements.
- 2.6.5 The results must be made available to the EMIs as soon as possible. If the analyses are not provided to the EMI then no action can be taken (Directive and Compliance Notices), and EMIs may fall short of their duty to protect the environment and the local community spared from the effects thereof.
- 2.6.6 Together with the analyses, EMIs may also require expert testimony in criminal courts.
- 2.7 Against the above as a background, chemical analyses form an important component of cases investigated by the Department through its Environmental Management Inspectors. This will enable informed decisions to be made after considering the degree of damage which may have been caused to the environment.
- 2.8 The standard methods of procurement are not designed to quickly obtain the services of laboratories to analyse samples. In most cases investigated by EMIs, the unlawful acts occur unexpectedly and the evidence, is needed to prove an offense, may only exist in the environment for a short space of time. Proactively, obtaining the services of these laboratories will go a long way to easing the process linked to obtaining services through traditional methods of procurement.
- 2.9 Finally, obtaining results of sample analysis will ensure that those who damage the environment are held accountable and make good for the damage that has occurred.

3. OBJECTIVES

- 3.1. The laboratories to be appointed must be SANAS accredited and must be able to analyse samples of different media (e.g. soil, water, sludge, seawater, air amongst others). The service provider (s) may be required to defend the analyses in a court of law, and hence a chain of custody protocol needs to be followed.

4. SCOPE AND EXTENT OF WORK

- 4.1. The SANAS-accredited service providers will be expected to gather (in certain circumstances), test, and analyse samples under the guidance of DFFE.
- 4.2. SANAS-accredited laboratories are invited to submit their proposals if they are capable of doing the following analyses:
- 4.2.1 Inorganic analyses
 - 4.2.2 Organic analyses
 - 4.2.3 Microbiological analyses
 - 4.2.4 Gravimetric analyses
 - 4.2.5 Elements ICP-OES analyses
 - 4.2.6 Total calculations
 - 4.2.7 Bacteriological analyses
 - 4.2.8 Waste classification in terms of SANS 10234
 - 4.2.9 Pesticides
 - 4.2.10 Any other analyses not mentioned above
- 4.3. Bidders must also indicate the environmental media which can be tested. This includes but is not limited to the following areas:
