1. PURPOSE

- 1.1. To appoint laboratories to render an analytical service to the Department on an “as and when” required basis for a period on three (3) years.
- 1.2. These terms of reference detail the specific qualifications, skills and experience requirements, the work that will be expected to be performed as well as other relevant contractual and working arrangements that will apply.
- 1.3. Offers will be accepted from Accredited service providers or companies that provide the required services for a province where they can provide the service needed.

2. INTRODUCTION AND BACKGROUND

- 2.1 The Department of Forestry, Fisheries and the Environment (“DFFE”), employs Environmental Management Inspectors (EMIs), to undertake compliance and enforcement of the National Environmental Management Act (NEMA) as well as the Specific Environmental Management Acts (“SEMA’s”)
- 2.2 To give effect to this mandate, EMIs have investigation powers which entitles these officials to take evidence, which includes taking samples, to prove the commission of an environmental offence.
- 2.3 In recognition of the specialised skillset of EMIs to investigate environmental crimes, the DFFE entered into a Standard Operating Procedure (“SOP”) with the South African Police Services (“SAPS”) in 2012. This SOP essentially allows EMIs to undertake environmental criminal investigations on behalf of the SAPS.
- 2.4 As a result, the SAPS regularly refers cases to the various environmental authorities for the investigation work to be undertaken by EMIs.
- 2.5 In all criminal investigations which results in prosecutions, the burden of proof lies with the State to prove whether an offence was committed beyond all reasonable doubt. In waste and pollution cases, this entails evidence to be submitted which indicates whether, contamination or pollution exists as well as to determine the degree thereof. This can only be done in most cases by collecting samples and to analyse these by accredited laboratories by following very specific sampling methods.
- 2.6 Given the nature of investigations undertaken by EMIs, the following are important factors which must be taken into account when samples are taken:
 - 2.6.1 The sample needs to be taken as soon as the EMI becomes aware of the problem.
 - 2.6.2 Samples cannot be taken on one day and analysed several weeks later since many of the pollutants in question degrade rapidly. Therefore, if delays between the taking and analysing of the sample is experienced, the sample becomes worthless and the EMI’s would have lost crucial evidence. This ultimately means that those who caused the damage to the environment will never be held accountable.

- 2.6.3 Samples cannot be analysed by individuals/ institutions who do not possess the relevant accreditation. In addition to the above, there are certain requirements when presenting samples in a criminal court namely a process called chain of custody. This ensures traceability throughout the process, from sampling to analyses and the presentation of the evidence in court.
- 2.6.4 The Forensic Science Laboratory of the SAPS are unable to do many of the environmental analyses required by EMI's, including but not limited to microbiological analyses, water quality parameters, phenols, diesel- and gasoline-range organics or quantified analyses of trace elements.
- 2.6.5 The results must be made available to the EMI's as soon as possible. If the analyses are not provided to the EMI's then no action can be taken (Directive and Compliance Notices), and EMIs may fall short of its duty to protect the environment and the local community from the affects thereof.
- 2.6.6 Together with the analyses, EMIs may also require an interpretation of the results of the analyses as well as the provision of expert testimony in the criminal courts.

2.7 Against the above as a background, chemical analyses form an important component when cases are investigated by the Department through its Environmental Management Inspectors. This will enable informed decisions to be made after inter alia considering the degree of damage which may have been caused to the environment.

2.8 The standard methods of procurement are not designed to quickly obtain the services of laboratories to analyse samples. In most cases investigated by EMIs, the unlawful acts occur unexpectedly and the evidence which is needed to prove an offence may only exist in the environment for a short space of time. Proactively, obtaining the services of these laboratories will go a long way to easing the process linked to obtaining services through the traditional methods of procurement.

2.9 Finally, obtaining sample results will ensure that those who damages the environment are held accountable and makes good for the damage that was caused.

3. OBJECTIVES

- 3.1. The laboratories will require SANAS accreditation and must be able to analyse samples from different media (e.g. Soil, water, sludge, sea water, air). The analyses will also need to be interpreted against acceptable standards. The service provider (s) may be required to defend the analyses and the interpretation thereof in a court of law, and hence chain of custody protocol needs to be followed.

4. SCOPE AND EXTENT OF WORK

- 4.1. The accredited service providers may be expected to gather, test and analyse samples under the guidance of DFFE.
- 4.2. SANAS accredited laboratories are invited to submit their proposals if they are capable of doing the following analyses:
- 4.2.1 Inorganic analyses
 - 4.2.2 Organic analyses
 - 4.2.3 Microbiological analyses
 - 4.2.4 Gravimetric analyses
 - 4.2.5 Elements ICP-OES analyses
 - 4.2.6 Total calculations
 - 4.2.7 Bacteriological analyses
 - 4.2.8 Waste classification and assessment in terms of relevant/ applicable legislation
 - 4.2.9 Nuclear and radioactive substances
 - 4.2.10 Any other analyses not mentioned above that may be required based on the circumstances of the case
