TERMS OF REFERENCE

For The development of the Social Budget Projection Model component

1. PURPOSE

To appoint a service provider to develop the Social Budget projection model component for Social Budgeting Mechanism.

2. BACKGROUND

The Department of Social Development (DSD) is mandated to facilitate the development of the Comprehensive Social Security system. While investigating and benchmarking with the other developing countries, and the International Labour Organisation (ILO), it was decided that it was prudent to develop a Social Budget Mechanism (SBM) for South Africa. Two bulletins have been published using the current excel format. Relying on this format had created a high dependency due to its framework of collecting data from source reports. This caused delays and non-finalisation of a publication. Hence, a projections model is proposed to ensure that delays are eliminated and a bulletin is completed and published as envisaged using forecasting ability of the model.

A Social budget projection model is a financial model used to estimate the future revenues and expenditures of a country's social security system. This tool has been pioneered by the International Labour Organisation (ILO) to regularly enumerate public and private social spending in a systematic accounting framework (the social accounting system) and to make forward projections of such social spending under various assumptions or scenarios (social spending).

The purpose of the anticipated social budgeting projection model will be to:

- Forecast income and expenditure (budget projections), including:
 - Employment-related social security expenditure
 - Publicly financed social protection expenditure
 - Private sector/collective agreements based on social protection expenditure
- Assess long-term sustainability of social security systems in the country
- Identify potential funding shortfalls or surpluses
- Inform policy decisions (e.g., raising retirement age, adjusting benefits)
- Support budget planning and financial stability.

Therefore, social budgeting has two main components, (i) a Social Accounting System (SAS) and (ii) a model projecting social expenditure into the future (projections model).

Development and maintenance of a Social Budget will not be a once-off exercise and rather, it needs to become an on-going support to government policy-making, thus, needs a respective statistical reporting structure permanently implemented. Social Budgeting makes explicit the public and private expenditures associated with any social (Social Insurance) function with a counterpart in the private sector. Making this information explicit helps Government make informed decisions about policy and budgets for social functions.

2.1. Social Accounting System (SAS)

The SAS component of the social budgeting process defines the basic table structure for the statistical presentation of the financial flows of all the social benefit programmes, as well as presentation of projection results:

- Revenue classifications should cover both legal classification and sources, while expenditure classifications should be classified by economic category and function and that;
- Links should be made with other statistical systems such as System of National Accounts (SNA) and the European System of Social Protection Statistics (ESSPROS).

This basic unit of analysis is a social benefit scheme defined as a distinct body of rule governing the provision of social benefit schemes can be categorised in several ways such as:

- Decision making control, i.e., the scheme, central government, provincial or local government, a non-government scheme for employees (contractual and non-contractual).
- Legal enforcement, i.e., is it compulsory, voluntary but available by law or other.
- Contributory or non-contributory schemes.
- Level of protection i.e., just a basic safety net or more extensive.

- Scope, i.e., the whole population, economically active, special groups such as public servants, self-employed or specific occupations.

All schemes must be administered by an institution. Tables showing the incomes and expenditure of each of these institutions are the building blocks of the SAS.

However, the system also contains;

- Sector tables which show the origin of funds for the main areas of social expenditure
- Contextual tables which show key demographic, employment and economic information and also government revenues and expenditure for comparison.
- A Social Budget summary table which shows total social expenditures and receipts in current prices and provide comparisons with other macroeconomic and demographic variables.
- Key indicator tables which draw on the information presented in the other tables to derive performance measures and other indicators needed policy purposes.

2.2. Social Budget Projection Model

An expenditure and revenue projection model: which provides forward projections of social expenditure and revenue under current policy rules given a range of demographic and economic scenarios and also allows for the modelling of policy adjustments

The government, through the Department of Social Development seeks to develop a Social Budget Projection Model to help policy makers understand how factors like demographics, economic growth, and policy changes will impact sustainability of the country's social security programmes over time. The projection model takes the estimates of social expenditure as presented in the SAS and projects them into the future. The main feature of the Social Budget estimating the cost and impact of future social benefits under various policy scenarios, relies on the South African Micro-simulation Model (SAMOD). The SAMOD is a static tax and benefit micro-simulation model developed for the DSD by the Centre for Analysis of South African Social Policy. The model is a South African application of a EUROMOD type model developed by the Institute for Social Economic Research at the University of Essex with the main elements.

It is expected that the model will cover the following key components:

2.2.1. Demographic Assumptions: population growth, birth rates, and death rates; aging trends and life expectancy; as well as Workforce participation rates.

2.2.2. Economic assumptions: wage growth and inflation; employment levels and productivity; GDP growth

2.2.3. Policy and Programme Assumptions: contribution rates (taxes paid into the system); benefit formulas and eligibility criteria; retirement age policies; healthcare and pension costs.
