SECTION 3: BACKGROUND, OVERVIEW AND SCOPE OF REQUIREMENTS

1 BACKGROUND

Signalling Systems are installed across the railway network to ensure controlled and safe passage of trains through the network. Signalling has over the years evolved and now subdivided into two categories:

- Train Authorisation Systems;
- Condition Assessment Systems.

Train Authorisation Systems consists of the following main elements:

- Remote Control
- Interlocking
- Signal
- Points
- Track vacancy detection (Track circuits, Axle Counters)

Train authorisation equipment is highly specialised and their respective spares are extremely complex. All train authorisation equipment perform safety critical functions and require rigorous testing and type approval by Transnet Freight Rail's Technology Management prior to being acceptable for procurement for installation on the rail network.

Type approval testing of the equipment consists of:

- Step 1: Paper based exercise to confirmation of compliance to functional and safety specifications;
- Step 2: Laboratory testing to confirm compliance to functional and safety specifications;
- Step 3: "On-track" testing/"Field" testing if (only after confirming full compliance in steps 1 and 2 above).

The testing and approval period differs depending on the type of equipment and as such could take anything from 3 to 12 months. Complex systems, where operational stability and performance requirements are tested can take well beyond 12 months to complete the type approval process. This procurement event covers the testing of various Train Authorisation Systems (TAS) equipment with an aim of framing such onto an approved list of train authorisation technologies and suppliers for new installations, spares and repairs. In alignment with the annual refreshment of the said approved list.

These requirements are over and above technical compliance with the relevant technology specifications.

b) Phase 2 Minimum Threshold of 70 points for Technical Criteria

Each submission must also have a detailed index. The supplier must provide evidence of compliance to specification for each technology/service that the supplier wants to submit to TFR for type approval, the evidence must be clearly referenced on the relevant technical evaluation criteria.

- Should a supplier be in possession of any information/evidence from previous experience which indicates that the product successfully meets certain requirements of TFR Technology Management's testing and approval process, the supplier shall provide this information as part of the tender submission which shall be clearly labelled as such. Previously approved suppliers will be expected to provide proof of their equipment's approval issued by Transnet.

Technical: Transnet undertakes to verify any previous technical approvals against existing information within Transnet archives.

Upon receipt of bid submissions and due diligence conducted, the CFET shall make a submission to the Transnet Freight Rail DBAC recommending framing of an approved list consisting of previously approved suppliers and technologies with immediate effect.

Further from that, testing of technically complying technologies shall be conducted. These technologies shall be added to the framed approved list as soon as they successfully complete the technical testing and approval process.

Respondents must complete and submit Annexure A which include a technical evaluation Questionnaire. A Respondent's compliance with the minimum technical threshold will be measured by their responses to Annexure A.

Further from that, all bidders testing of technically complying technologies shall be conducted. These technologies shall be added to the framed approved list as and when they successfully complete the technical testing and approval process.

6.4.2 Lab and Field testing- for unapproved technologies

The supplier is required to indicate if the product is supported by a warranty and the terms of conditions thereof must be clearly stated. Should the supplier not indicate the warranty and the terms of the conditions thereof, the supplier will be found to be none compliant to should the equipment specification require warranty to be indicated.

Unapproved products will undergo the complete testing and approval process as listed below:

- Supplier to provide detailed technical specifications, designs, drawings of proposed systems that the supplier has selected to tender for.
- Provide product samples to be tested by TFR TM in a TFR laboratory environment, where it is not possible to use a TFR Laboratory independent premises or the supplier's premises shall be utilised to perform the required testing under the following circumstances;
  1. If the local supplier is not familiar with the technology, it is always ideal to conduct the lab setup at their facility where they have their skills available.
  2. The technology under test may require additional equipment (e.g. power supplies, communications interfaces, simulators, etc. which might not be available at a TFR lab).
  3. TFR may not have the space for all the suppliers to set up their equipment.
  4. May require suppliers have access to TFR facilities after-hours (risk).
  5. Suppliers may have access to other supplier's products and know-how (IP risk).
- Design, Supply, Install and Pre-test the complete system and the relevant interfaces at a pilot site selected by Transnet Freight Rail for 'on-track testing' at the supplier's cost.
- Decommission the existing equipment and store it such that it can be re-instated after the completion of the 'on-track testing'.
- Perform first line maintenance on the system for the duration of the 'on-track' testing period.
- Provide all installation, maintenance and training manuals required.
- Provide Training to TFR personnel on maintenance and configuration.
- After the 'on-track' testing is complete, the supplier shall remove the piloted system and re-instate the original system at the suppliers cost.
- Should the pilot be successful, the supplier will be added onto the new TFR framed approved list.
- The approved system shall be rolled out as and when required by TFR, using the train authorisation systems approved list to approach bidders.

If quality improvements to the technology is required during the piloting period, the contractor will be allowed a total of four opportunities to comply with the requirement i.e. twice during laboratory testing and twice during 'on-track' testing. Should the contractor not comply with this requirement, it will be a disqualifying criteria. This is done to assist all those suppliers providing new technologies which are not yet matured and may need more than one opportunity to get them to a standard that fully complies with Transnet's requirements.

SECTION 4: PRICING AND DELIVERY SCHEDULE
