Key Value		Keynote Text
S1: General note		Prior to commencing with any electrical work, all drawings must be reviewed to spot possible conflicts and where needed, work must be coordinated with other trades to avoid conflict. Where work cannot be coordinated with the other trades, consult with the architect for instruction on how to continue. All discrepancies to be brought to the attention of the architect before work commences. Install all new work in a neat workmanlike manner readily accessible for operation, maintenance and repair. All conduits to be adequately concealed and covered completely.
