

POLLARD BACK AS ERASMUS MAKES CHANGES FOR SECOND TEST

By SPORTS STAFF

Springbok utility forward Pieter-Steph du Toit will mark the achievement of becoming the 11th player in history to earn 100 South Africa Test caps in Saturday's second Test against the All Blacks at Cape

● Kolisi bracketed alongside De Villiers at flank if he trains

Town Stadium.
Prop Ox Nché will join the club of players to earn 50 caps in the Test.
Springbok coach Rassie Erasmus named a similar starting XV on Monday to the one that lined up against the All Blacks in Johannesburg last week.
The only changes saw Siya Kolisi bracketed alongside Paul de Villiers at flanker, while Handré Pollard and Cobus Reinach will start as the halfback pairing and Ethan Hooker takes over from Cheslin Kolbe on the wing after Kolbe picked up a niggles in the first Test.
Should Kolisi make it through training comfortably this week, he will replace Paul de Villiers, joining Du Toit and Jasper Wiese in the loose trio.

Willemse. Pieter-Steph du Toit retains the captaincy.
If Kolisi runs out at Cape Town Stadium, it will be the most experienced Springbok team ever to take the field, with a combined total of 1,012 Test caps in the starting XV.
The switches on the bench see the inclusion of 39-year-old Deon Fourie in a back-up front row with Gerhard Steenekamp and Thomas du Toit, while Lood de Jager (lock) and Cameron Hanekom (loose forward) will join hybrid Andre Esterhuizen as the replacement forwards.
The two replacement backs are scrumhalf Morné van den Berg and the versatile Sacha Feinberg-Mngomezulu.
All of the players in the match-day squad, with the exception of Fourie, who last wore the green and gold jersey in the 2023 Rugby World Cup final, featured in the Boks' last two Test matches, against Argentina and the All Blacks.

niggles last weekend, which ruled them out of contention for selection, while we have bracketed Siya alongside Paul to allow us time to monitor how Siya comes through training this week," Erasmus said.
