2.4. Scope of Work

2.4.1. Part A: Environmental, Social and Governance (ESG) Framework

The implementation of sustainability into any organisation is increasingly requiring Environmental, Social and Governance (ESG) performance metrics as they relate to the business activities to be clearly identified, adequately managed and evaluated.

This aims to ensure that the organisation can measure the investment and efforts made to proactively understand the business' ESG impacts, risks and opportunities to proactively minimise the exposure to regulatory, transition, financial, reputational, environmental, social risks.

Environmental and climate change-related challenges continue to devastate our country's economy, business sector, communities and the natural environment. The resultant impacts have called for the need to increase efforts that ensures climate-resilience and the prioritisation of adaptation measures.

In the context of aviation, the environmental impacts of the aviation sector are evident through aircraft emissions and fuel, aircraft noise and air quality impacts, as well as environmental risks created by on-the-ground facilities. The industry's contribution to global emissions may account for approximately 2% of carbon emissions, however with the anticipated growth in air traffic due increases in demand and economic growth, the need to decarbonise the sector, through reducing its impact on climate change, remains critical. Therefore, collective action to manage and mitigate the associated negative impacts and build a resilient society continues to be a fundamental issue for both private and public sectors. Hence, ATNS' commitment to addressing environmental stewardship through building climate resilience and protecting our natural resources.
