The interruption times will be communicated by the municipality to all customers with hot water cylinders control devices installed in their household. To date, approximately 10 000 units are installed in the greater Stellenbosch area including Franschhoek where residents make use of traditional electrical geyser systems to supply hot water to the respective household. The Municipality intends to perform maintenance on the network and conduct an audit of the existing infrastructure to assess both functional performance and installation quality and find a way forward on the findings of the audit conducted.
