NOISE REDUCTION – MOTOR PUMP TEST HOUSE AND SURROUNDING AREAS

1) MOTOR PUMP TEST HOUSE

1.1 Background

Motor Pump Test House (MPTH) is a testing facility situated at Main Electrical Workshop under Operations division. The testing facility is mainly used for load testing on electrical motors, mechanical pumps, fans and motor- pump systems. Load testing bay is very important in the process of repairs and maintenance as the testing process qualifies and certifies the operativeness state of the electrical motors, mechanical pumps, fans and motor-pump systems. However, when the testing process of fans are conducted, they are associated with unbearable noise pollution. The noise pollution creates the gravely disturbance in the adjoining offices and conference room, and ultimately results to health hazards and poor working environment. The main aim of this requirement is to reduce noise pollution that gets emitted to the conference room and Section manager's office.

1.2 Noise Test

The noise test was conducted, where an average size was used as a testing apparatus. The testing of fan was conducted, and the noise levels were recorded in the motor test house and the surrounding areas. The test was conducted in three trials under similar conditions. The “decibelMeter” app downloaded on the cellphone was used as noise detector measuring unit.
