SUBJECT: COMPUTABLE GENERAL EQUILIBRIUM (CGE) COURSE TRAINING
Item No	Number of licenses	Training requirements	Unit Price
1	5	• GEMPACK software and licensing: As the training course procured by the team is GEMPACK-based, obtaining the relevant GEMPACK software and licensing will allow us to build directly on the knowledge and skills acquired through the training. This approach will provide greater continuity and enable the team to apply the training more effectively, rather than having to start from scratch with a new software package and a different modelling language. • Development of a recursive-dynamic model for South Africa: Develop a South African recursive-dynamic CGE model that is specifically tailored to and aligned with the mandate and policy priorities of the Department of Trade, Industry and Competition (dtic). • Scenario Development & Simulation: Work closely with the dtic modelling team to identify key policy questions and priority interventions that need to be addressed through the model, and develop and run relevant policy simulations. This hands-on process will enable the team to gain a comprehensive understanding of the model, its underlying mechanisms and assumptions, and its application to different policy scenarios, ultimately building the capacity to operate, modify and use the model independently. • Skills Transfer & Handover: Provide comprehensive training to equip the dtic team with an in-depth understanding of the model, including its structure, underlying assumptions, functionality, data requirements, and application to policy simulations. The handover should ensure that the team has the knowledge and practical skills required to operate, interpret, update and apply the model independently.
