4. SCOPE AND EXTENT OF WORK

The functions which are required from the service provider will include:

4.1. General duties

- 4.1.1. The fisheries research vessels serve as floating platforms to enable the research personnel of the MLRF/DFFE to gather information on a wide variety of marine resources and their environment. This information, inter alia, along with those captured on commercial vessels, is used to determine resource size, ecosystem health and ultimately Total Allowable Catches. These vessels therefore play a vital role in the management of South Africa's marine living resources. The fisheries research vessels conduct operations during both day and night.
- 4.1.2. The fisheries protection vessels are used to primarily convey the Fishery Control Officers to the fishing grounds to enable them to enforce the provisions of the MLRA. This may necessitate the transfer of Fishery Control Officers to other (fishing) vessels by use of inflatable boats that are manned and skippered by Fishery Control Officers. The fisheries protection vessels conduct operations by both day and night.

4.2. Security, Confidentiality and Information Security

- 4.1.1. The operations of the fisheries protection vessels are by their nature sensitive. The crew will be required to sign non-disclosure agreements and undergo security vetting and may be required to undergo polygraph testing in relation to fisheries protection vessel operations.
- 4.1.2. The Service Provider shall implement and maintain strict confidentiality and information security protocols in respect of:
 - (a) fisheries patrol operations;
 - (b) surveillance activities;
 - (c) vessel movements;

- (d) fisheries intelligence;
- (e) enforcement operations;
- (f) scientific and research data;
- (g) compliance inspections; and
- (h) any information classified by the MLRF/DFFE.

- 4.1.3. All personnel deployed under this contract, including subcontractors, shall sign confidentiality and non-disclosure agreements prior to commencement of duties.
- 4.1.4. The Service Provider shall ensure that confidential information is not disclosed, shared or used for personal, commercial or third party benefit.
- 4.1.5. The MLRF/DFFE reserves the right to conduct its own security vetting and background screening of key personnel assigned to the contract.

4.2. Manning

The Vessel Manager is expected to provide manning for the vessels in accordance with the requirements set by SAMSA for each vessel type. In instances where specialised fisheries surveys are to be undertaken, the Vessel Manager may be expected to source and provide suitably qualified crew (such as fishing masters) within the scope of the service.

The manning levels for each vessel are as follows:

4.3. Areas of operation & duration of voyages

4.3.1. The research vessels operate out of national and international ports and sail according to pre-determined sailing schedules drawn up by the Chief Directorate: Fisheries Research and Development. Sailing schedules consist of:

- (a) An annual research survey schedule normally published in January, for the financial year commencing in April.
- (b) Sailing Orders are issued approximately ten days prior to sailing and contain full details of all work to be undertaken, including but not limited to the area of operation and scientific/technical personnel involved.
- (c) Ad hoc and specialised research surveys commissioned as and when required.
- (d) The Africana normally operates within the EEZ but may also undertake occasional research surveys to the Southern Ocean and Antarctica. An average research survey usually lasts between 5 and 54 days on the Africana, and from 5 to 21 days on the Ellen Khuzwayo.
- (e) Both of the Fisheries Research vessels occasionally undertake charters to other research organisations or to private users. The MLRF/DFFE may engage in ad hoc charter arrangements with a third party. Such charters form part of the vessels normal programme. Both research vessels may carry out research voyages in the SADC Region.
- (f) It is also necessary from time to time to carry out trial voyages, with or without research personnel on board.

4.3.2. The fisheries protection vessels normally operate out of Cape Town, but the three inshore vessels are often deployed to other South African ports for extended periods. The inshore vessels may be required to operate within the SADC region and this may require an additional Engineering Officer. The offshore fisheries protection vessel Sarah Baartman is usually based in Cape Town, but undertakes patrols throughout the SADC region and into the Southern Ocean and/or any other area of deployment. An average voyage for the inshore vessels usually lasts up to 15 days and for the offshore vessel usually lasts up to 21 days. Sailing Orders for the fisheries protection vessel are issued at short notice, generally one day, given its sensitivity in nature and contain full details of all work to be undertaken, including but not limited to the area of operation and Fishery Control Officers involved.

4.4. Nature of voyages

- 4.4.1. Research voyages vary widely. Vessels generally operate on a 24 (twenty four) hour per day basis. The Chief Scientist devises a pre-determined grid of stations for sampling, and after consultation with the Master this will form the basis of the vessel's passage. However, the very nature of the work requires considerable flexibility, and changes in strategy and work priorities are part of an on-going process throughout each voyage. Close teamwork is therefore required between officers and scientists, as well as scientists and crew. Besides assisting researchers with the deployment and retrieval of equipment, the deck crew is required to assist in the sorting of fish catches.
- 4.4.2. The type of work carried out by the research vessels generally falls into the following categories:
- (a) Stopping the ship and maintaining position whilst lowering probes to the depths of up to 6 000 metres. This requires constant diligence and propulsion system manipulation by the officer on watch to ensure that the sampling cable remains vertical.
 - (b) Slowing down the vessel to deploy research nets, traps, buoys, long lines amongst other and similarly retrieving the gear some hours later.
 - (c) Slowing down the vessels to deploy demersal and pelagic trawls. The trawling is carried out by a Fishing Master in consultation with the Chief Scientist, based on predetermined areas decided the evening prior to the day's work. Pelagic trawls are done on an ad hoc basis as requested by researchers operating the scientific hydro acoustic systems. These operators will request the officer of the watch to slow the vessel and the Fishing Master will deploy the trawl on a specific course. During the actual trawling, direction of these operations is the responsibility of the acoustics watch keeper. Such operations are done with due regard to the safety of the vessel, for example, distances from the shore, traffic, amongst other things.
 - (d) Conducting hydro acoustic surveys, steaming a fixed grid at a constant speed. The grid will occasionally be broken to undertake other research operations.
 - (e) Retrieving and redeploying oceanographic instruments moored on the seabed.
 - (f) Being mother ship to the operations conducted from inflatable boats, for example, seal sampling, diving operations, calibrations, amongst other things.
 - (g) During all the above operations, researchers require regular access to the bridge.
- 4.4.3. The fisheries protection vessels voyages are determined by the objectives of the Chief Directorate: Monitoring, Control and Surveillance and deemed as highly classified.
- 4.4.4. The vessel Master's local knowledge is of paramount importance as he/she is frequently required to manoeuvre the vessel in close proximity to the shore to investigate other vessels in the process of catching fish. It is often necessary to board these vessels, and boarding is conducted by the Fishery Control Officers.

4.4.5. Patrol voyages vary widely and vessels generally operate on a 24 hour per day basis. It must be stressed that the very nature of their duties requires fisheries protection vessels to work irregular hours/shifts in a similar manner to other law enforcement officers. Good communication between the fisheries protection vessels and the Fishery Control Officers on board is essential, and seamanship of a high standard is a prerequisite for a successful operation. This applies particularly to the boarding of vessels on the high seas.

4.4.6. On occasion, the vessels participate in combined operations, which would include the use of other vessels or aircraft. These combined or joint operations will include working with other local and international law enforcement agencies.

4.5. The role of Master, officers and crew

4.5.1. The Master, officers and crew are expected to conduct themselves in accordance with the best practice of seamen whilst on board the vessels. The specialised nature of the research vessels and the nature of the service expected of them demands that the personnel who man them shall do so to the standard as set by the MLRF/DFFE.

4.5.2. Apart from safety, the Master's prime commitment is to the Chief Scientist and his or her team in order to facilitate the aims and objectives of the research programme. It is imperative that the Master and his/ her crew are aware themselves of the requirements of the scientists, as a mutual appreciation of each other's responsibilities is essential to the successful operation of the ship and to the purpose of the particular voyage.

4.5.3. On Africana a Fishing Master with a Bosun leading the deck team carries out all demersal (bottom) trawling. On certain trawling surveys work takes place on a 24 hour basis. Deployment of the trawling gear is shared by two Fishing Masters. The Fishing Master, Bosuns and deck crew are all required to repair nets as and when required. The deck crew are expected to assist with sorting of catches on deck.

4.5.4. On the Ellen Khuzwayo the Master is expected to assist with the deployment of traps and longline gear. The deck crew assists with sorting the catch on deck, and preparing the fishing gear for redeployment.

4.5.5. With the deployment of scientific gear over the ship's side or stern, suitably trained Bosuns are required to operate the scientific winches and davits under the supervision of the scientist on watch.

4.5.6. It is, however, clearly understood by all that throughout scientific operations the Master is solely responsible for the safety and wellbeing of the ship and the personnel, and at no time is he/she expected to compromise safety in order to meet the requirements of the Chief Scientist.

- 4.5.7. Although the aims and objectives of the fisheries protection vessels are substantially different to those of the fisheries research vessels, the role of the vessel's personnel is nevertheless similar to that of their research ship counterparts.
- 4.5.8. The launching of the Rigid Hull Inflatable Boats (RHIB) or Fast Rescue Craft (FRC) shall be carried out by the Master and officers. However the operation thereof is the responsibility of the Fisheries Control Officer. The Master and crew have the same responsibility to the Fishery Control Officers in much the same way as the Master, officers and crew of a research ship have to the scientists. The professional judgement of the Master regarding safety during fishery patrols is of paramount importance.

4.6. The role of the scientists and Fishery Control Officers

- 4.6.1. The scientific team on-board a research ship comprises the Chief Scientist, Project Leaders and scientific support staff. Included in the team are the technicians responsible for maintaining the electronic/ computer systems onboard. The Chief Scientist will act as link with the vessel Master.
- 4.6.2. The Chief Scientist is responsible for directing all oversee operations. Trawling is carried out by the Fishing Master and all winch operations are carried out by the crew in deploying and retrieving equipment. The sorting and processing of all fish landed is the responsibility of the research staff with assistance from the crew.
- 4.6.3. The Chief Marine Conservation Inspector and/or the team leader for the Fishery Control Officers will liaise with the vessel Master and will direct all relevant inspections to ensure that the requirements of the Marine Living Resources Act and relevant Regulations are being complied with. The Chief Marine Conservation Inspector and/or the team leader for the Fishery Control Officers will direct the Master as to the movement of the vessel and what actions will be required, but the Master has the responsibility of ensuring that the safety of the vessel is never put at risk.

4.7. Communications:

- 4.7.1. It is essential that there be close communication between the Master and the Chief Scientist at all times. Regular communications in the form of progress reports (Sitreps) between the Master and the Vessel Manager are maintained by means of daily emails or other means.
- 4.7.2. There must be close communication between the Master and the Chief Marine Conservation Inspector at all times. This is in the form of daily briefings to achieve operational objectives

4.8. Voyage Preparation and Wash-up Meetings

- 4.8.1. Research Vessels: Prior to every voyage, the Chief Scientist will provide approved sailing instructions (Sailing Orders) which will form the basis of all activities conducted during the course of a survey. Prior to sailing, the research staff loads their equipment with the assistance of the ship's crew. At the completion of every voyage there will be a wash-up meeting.
- 4.8.2. Fisheries Protection Vessels: Prior to every voyage, the Director/Deputy Director will provide a briefing session on board the vessel. The Chief Marine Conservation Inspector will provide approved sailing instructions (Sailing Orders) which will form the basis of all activities conducted during the course of a patrol. The Director/Deputy Director will attend to a debriefing session.

4.9. Victuals

The vessel manager will be required to ensure appropriate and sufficient victuals, including drinking water, on board the vessels for each deployment. This include the provision of three (3) reasonable and decent meals per day and adequate drinking water for all personnel on board.

4.10. Reporting

4.10.1. The Master and Chief Engineer are required to submit a summary of events during the course of a voyage in the form of a Voyage Report. As well as providing a brief day to day summary of the progress, details of extra-ordinary events are given. In the case of the Chief Engineer's report a record of plant and equipment performance is given together with details of fuel and lubricant consumption amongst others. The Master is to submit a daily SITREP by noon on the fisheries research vessel daily activity to the relevant MLRF/DFFE Operations Manager.

4.10.2. The Master and Chief Engineer are required to submit a voyage report at the end of each fishery patrol to the MLRF/DFFE Operations Manager. The Master is to submit a daily SITREP by noon on the fisheries protection vessel daily activity to the relevant MLRF/DFFE Operations Manager.

4.11. Maintenance procedures and refits

4.11.1. All the vessels are subject to regular SAMSAs and Class Society surveys. Maintenance schedules are compiled in consultation with the relevant MLRF/DFFE Operations Managers.

4.11.2. All operations, maintenance and repair work will be in compliance with the original manufacturer specifications.

4.12. Vessels Standard Operating Procedures

A set of Standard Operating Procedures for MLRF/DFFE staff, crew and guests are to be adhered to. These are intended to set out the operating procedures and structure on-board the vessels and serve as a basis for interaction between ship's personnel, MLRF/DFFE personnel and guests. Copies are to be made available on request. Indemnity forms are to be completed by guests visiting and sailing with the vessels.

4.13. Specialised systems and equipment

4.13.1. The laboratories on the two research vessels contain permanently installed data capture and processing systems. This equipment includes sensors mounted elsewhere on the vessel, for instance, echo sounder transducers and temperature sensors amongst others. Such systems are installed for the use of research staff and therefore are the responsibility of this staff. Certain echo sounders and sonar equipment on the bridge of the research vessels also fall into this category, but use is shared between research staff and officers.

4.13.2. Specialised equipment on the fisheries protection vessels includes surveillance equipment (such as FLIR cameras, DVR's, night sights, cameras and digital recording cameras), fish measuring devices, and high speed chase boats. Fishery Control Officers/ Law Enforcement Officers may join the patrol vessels with issued fire-arms. The Master will be made aware of this and will be included in the safety planning for the voyage. The Sarah Baartman is equipped with a heli-deck.

4.14. Roles with regards to maintenance

- 4.14.1. The vessels' crew are responsible for the mechanical and electrical maintenance of including but not limited to all scientific winches, davits, cranes, working gear, and these items are therefore classified as ships' equipment. With respect to the laboratories, the crew is responsible for general maintenance of electrical equipment, water supplies, air conditioning and routine cleaning. Other scientific spaces such as sonar compartments are also the responsibility of the crew.
- 4.14.2. Notwithstanding the role of the Vessel Manager on the maintenance of equipment, the MLRF/DFFE Electronic Workshop Services (EWS) group will be on-board as required as part of the Chief Scientist's team. Monthly checks are made on all laboratory and winch systems, in consultation with vessel personnel. The EWS responsibilities for the scientific winches are limited to conductor cables and slip rings. The maintenance of the workboats will be the responsibility of the Vessel Manager.
- 4.14.3. The Vessel Manager will be responsible for the maintenance of all equipment onboard the fisheries protection vessels. The maintenance of the workboats will be the responsibility of the Vessel Manager.

4.15. Berthing space

The MLRF/DFFE requires berthing space in Cape Town for the vessels, and occasionally in other ports around the country.

4.16. Workboats

Both the research vessels and the fisheries protection vessels are equipped with workboats. The vessel manager will be responsible for deployment and retrieval of workboats during operations. The vessel manager will also be responsible for all aspects of the maintenance of the workboats, and ensure that these are operational at all times.

4.17. Net and gear store

The vessel manager will be responsible for maintaining and repairing fishing gear and research equipment and manning of the net and gear store in Paarden Island.

4.18. Specialised skills

The vessel manager may from time to time be required to recruit specialised skills, such as fishing masters.

4.19. Small craft fleet

The Vessel Manager will be responsible for assisting with maintenance and annual safety surveys for the MLRF/DFFE's fleet of small craft not associated with the fisheries research and patrol vessels.

4.20. Seized or arrested vessels

The Vessel Manager will be required to assist the MLRF/DFFE with regards to vessels seized or arrested during fisheries patrol operations. Such assistance will include access to vehicles with towing capacity of vessels, berthing of vessels, and ensuring safety and husbandry of crew on those vessels in a recognised commercial port.

4.21. Procurement

The Vessel Manager will be required to ensure that procurement follows their own procurement procedures, which must be aligned with and compliant with applicable public sector procurement legislation and regulations, and the bidder shall remain fully accountable for any non-compliance.

Procurement must be sufficiently flexible to ensure efficient and effective vessel maintenance, repair and operations.

4.22. Access to finance

The Vessel Manager may from time to time be required to have access to emergency finance to cover the costs of vessel repair, maintenance and operations. This is to ensure continuity of operations under emergency situations.

4.23. Insurance

The Vessel Manager will be required to ensure that the vessels are insured at all times.

4.24. Estimated utilisation & fuel consumption

4.24.1. Utilisation requirements

The following are the estimated maximum levels of utilisation of the vessels:

- 11.6.1. Only bid proposals that meet Phases 1, 2, 3 and 4 will be evaluated for Price and Specific Goals.
- 11.6.2. The preference point system applicable for this bid is 90/10.
- 11.6.3. The following preference point system will be followed to advance the categories of persons:
 - (a) Black ownership
 - (b) Women ownership
 - (c) Youth ownership
 - (d) People with disabilities.
- 11.6.4. For contracts with a Rand value above R50 000 000, a maximum of 10 points may be allocated for specific goals as contemplated above, provided that the lowest acceptable tender scores 90 points for price.
- 11.6.5. The applicable formula to be used is $P_s=90[1-(P_t-P_{min})/P_{min}]$. Provided:
 - (a) P_s = Points scored for the price of the tender under consideration.
 - (b) P_t = Price of tender under consideration; and
 - (c) P_{min} = Price of the lowest applicable tender.
- 11.6.6. A total of 10 points may be awarded to a tenderer as follows:
 - (a) 10 Points: if the Bidder has more than 50% (fifty percent) of Black people, Women, Youth or people with disabilities.
 - (b) 0 Points: for 50% and below ownership by stipulated categories of persons.
- 11.6.7. The bid will be awarded to a bidder with the highest points on price and Preference Points on condition that they have met all phases of the evaluation criteria and complied with the tender requirements set out in the tender document. However, a contract may be awarded to a tenderer that did not score the highest points by section 2(1) of the PPPFA.
- 11.6.8. A maximum of 10 Points will be allocated for specific goals as follows:

A.	PRICE	90
B.	Specific Goal	Number of points (10)
	51% black ownership	4

A.	PRICE	90
	50% women ownership	2
	Youth ownership	2
	Disability	2
	Non-compliant contributor	0

*The definitions of the above specific goals are as per the PPR policy of the MLRF.

11.6.9. For service providers to claim preference points, the following must be adhered to:

- (a) Submit a complete and signed SBD 6.1

- (c) Submit CSD Registration Report or MAAA number

NB: Failure on the part of a tenderer to submit proof or documentation stated above in terms of this tender to claim preference points for specific goals with the tender will be interpreted to mean that preference points for specific goals are not claimed.

11.6.10. Calculation of points for price - The Preferential Procurement Policy Framework Act (PPPFA) prescribes that the lowest acceptable bid will score 80 points (for tenders under R50m) or 90 points (for tenders above R50m) for price. Suppliers that quoted higher prices will score lower points for price on a pro-rata basis. Where functionality is set as criteria, only bid proposals that meet functionality requirements will be considered for evaluation on price and specific goals preference points.

11.6.11. The 90/10 as an appropriate preference point system will be used in the evaluation and adjudication of this quote. However, it must be extended that the lowest acceptable quote will be used to determine the applicable preference point system as per regulation (Section 3(2)(b) of the Preferential Procurement Regulations (PPR) 2022, which states: "If it is unclear which preference point system will be applicable, that either the 80/20 or 90/10 preference point system will apply and that the lowest acceptable proposal will be used to determine the applicable preference point system". Therefore, either 80 or 90 points, depending on the rand value of the proposal, will be awarded to the suppliers who offers the lowest price, and proportionately fewer points are awarded to those with higher prices. Either 20 or 10 points are then available as preference points for Specific Goals, as applicable. The contract will be awarded to the supplier that scores the highest total number of adjudication points per category.
