SECTION 2: BACKGROUND, PURPOSE, AND SCOPE OF WORK.

2.1 Background

The Chief Dawid Stuurman International airport terminal was upgraded in 2009 to accommodate approximately 2 million annual passengers. The airport had a steady growth reaching just above 1,6 million annual passengers in FY19/20 at which time some terminal subsystems started to saturate during peak periods. In early 2020 the Covid-19 pandemic resulted in reduced airport operations and low passenger volumes, which halted some interventions to alleviate the constraints at the time. Currently the traffic volumes have recovered to above 70%.

The capacity analysis below demonstrates that most subsystems will saturate in the near term; indicating that the terminal is reaching its design capacity. As such, a major terminal expansion is planned for the project. However, given the long delivery timelines of this project, some interim intervention is required to enable uncompromised operations until the major project is commissioned.

The capacity analysis below has confirmed most of the systems have reached saturation and causing challenges during peak periods. The terminal processors indicated in red below are saturated.

The various terminal subsystems have been analysed and the critical subsystems that can be optimized expeditiously with minimal infrastructural changes have been identified. These systems are the departures concourse, security, and the departures lounge area. These subsystems will be the focus of the next few paragraphs:

These challenges experienced at these subsystems include:

- Check-in and security queuing areas overlap which result in long queues and congestion. The consequence of this is poor passenger satisfaction ratings.
- Boarding gate 2 is directly opposite the central search point and experiences operational challenges. Passengers queuing to board, disrupt the security screening process, compromising effective security screening and increasing pressure on threat detection capabilities.
- The departure holding lounge is congested with insufficient seating and circulation space for passengers in the departure hall.

Therefore, it is proposed that the existing terminal area/space be optimized to ease the constrained areas.
