Most pump manufactures will only test when their client insist on a test. Due to old equipment testing at SABS had declined due to test not being reliable enough for what they are paying. Although most clients are still testing at SABS the number of tests has decreased substantially.

We need an upgrade on the old test equipment that has been in service from 10 – 40 years at this point.

The waiting period for a test is normally 2 – 3 weeks The mines cannot wait longer for the pumps to be tested due to cost and production and safety at their sites.
