The storage tanks must be elevated.

2.9 GRAVEL PACK

- The filter gravel will consist of durable, naturally rounded quarzitic particles properly washed and cleaned prior to insertion in the borehole. The gravel shall be introduced in the annular space between the wall of the borehole and the 200 mm casing from the bottom to about 2 meters below the surface. The final casing and screens must be centralized before the gravel pack and the borehole contractor must supply suitable equipment for lowering of the gravel pack.

2.10 CEMENTATION

- The space above the gravel pack shall be grouted with a mix of one part of cement, two parts of sand and two parts of ballast, in order of 1:2:2 concrete may be used near the surface to form an annular plug around the casing of dimensions 1.0 x 1.0 x 1.0 meters. There shall be a 200 mm diameter concrete plinth on top of the borehole and shall be constructed as directed by the NRF Project Manager. Any other cementation works not mentioned in the document must be done to ensure that the borehole is fully functional and operational.

3. STAGE 3: DEVELOPMENT

- The borehole contractor must furnish all necessary pumps, compressor, plungers, bailing or other needed equipment and shall develop the borehole by such approved methods as shall be necessary to give the maximum yield of water per increment of drawdown and extract from the formation of maximum practical quality of such sands as may, during the life of the borehole, be drawn through the screens when the borehole is operating under maximum conditions of draw down.

3.1 TEST PUMPING

- After the borehole has been developed, constructed and completed, the borehole contractor shall make necessary arrangements with the NRF Project Manager for conducting a 1 hour continuous test pumping up to a maximum of 3 hours. Where the NRF representative cannot be present on such pumping test, the borehole contractor may continue without him keeping accurate records of the test in terms of discharge and stabilizing point of the pump. Should the borehole contractor fail to keep such records, the Project Manager shall order the test to be repeated at no extra cost.
