The NRM work is in the core of the COHWHS and the specific areas to be managed are stated under the Scope of Work. The Project duration shall be 12 months

2. BACKGROUND

2.1. PROJECT AREA

The Cradle of Humankind World Heritage Site (herein constituting “the Project Area”) for the implementation of the Natural Resources Management Programme is illustrated in Figure 1 below. The world heritage property is 53 555.7 ha as inscribed on the World Heritage List in 1999 by the United Nations Educational, Scientific and Cultural Organisation (UNESCO) and proclaimed in the Government Gazette No. 30590 of 18 December 2007.

The attributes that express the Outstanding Universal Value (OUV) are predominantly tangible in nature and relate to the physical environment. The fossils and fossil deposits (both known and unknown), the scientific research and education potential regarding these fossils, the dolomite, groundwater, and the landscape itself constitutes the core OUV bearing attributes. with a superbly preserved record of the stages in the evolution of humankind. This 53 555.7 hectare world heritage is also home to a diversity of fauna and flora, some of which are rare or endangered.

Within the COHWHS are twenty-two fossil sites, of which sixteen (16) are registered as Grade 1 National Heritage Sites in terms of the National Heritage Resources Act, 1999 (Act No. 25 of 1999) (NHRA). Four (4) additional palaeontological sites are covered by the general protection clause in NHRA.

The Fossil Hominid Sites of Sterkfontein, Swartkrans, Kromdraai and Environs (herein referred to as the Cradle of Humankind World Heritage Site) was inscribed on the World Heritage List as a cultural world heritage property based on criteria (iii) and (vi) by the World Heritage Committee on 02 December 1999. Through Government Gazette No. 30590 of 18 December 2007, the COHWHS constituting an area of 53 555.7 hectares (ha) was proclaimed as a world heritage site in terms of the World Heritage Convention Act, 1999 (Act No. 49 of 1999) (WHCA).

It is protected as a National Heritage Site in terms of the National Heritage Resources Act, 1999 (Act No. 25 of 1999) (NHRA) and a Protected Area in terms of the National Environmental Management: Protected Areas Act, 2003 (Act No. 57 of 2003) (NEMPAA).

The world heritage property extends across 1247 subdivided farm portions and falls primarily within the boundaries of the Mogale City Local Municipality (MCLM), as well as the West Rand District Municipality (WRDM), and the Madibeng Local Municipality (MLM). The Magaliesberg Protected Area (MPA) and the Magaliesberg Biosphere Reserve (MBR) which includes the COHWS are located towards the North-West province.

2.1.1. Geographical Coordinates

The COHWS is situated predominantly within the Gauteng Province (approximately 45 minutes away from the City of Johannesburg (CoJ), 5 km north of the closest urban centre), although the northern portion is situated within North-West province.

3. RATIONALE FOR THE NATURAL RESOURCES MANAGEMENT PROGRAMME (INCLUDING INTEGRATED FIRE MANAGEMENT)

South Africa is a party to the World Heritage Convention of 1972 and its obligations is to, amongst others: ensure the identification, protection, conservation, presentation and transmission to future generations of the cultural and natural heritage situated within their territory and to also implement the Operational Guidelines for the Implementation of the World Heritage Convention.

The Bankenveld grassland vegetation that covers much of the project area is generally well conserved and provides a rich palette of greens, and golden browns. The grassland is interspersed with patches of dense woody vegetation in the drainage lines and along ridges and rocky outcrops, and limited crop cultivation in the wide valley bottoms. The vegetation across the area is not homogenous in distribution type, density or height. The richness of plant and animal species in the area is enhanced by its location within the transition zone between the savanna and grassland biomes. It features a diversity of woody plants and non-grassy herbs as well as animals.

The area of Bankenveld grassland that lies within the COHWHS is of national conservation importance because:

- less than 2% of the grassland in South Africa is formally conserved.
- there is only 1,3% of the Bankenveld conserved within protected areas; and
- the condition of the Bankenveld within the core area of COHWHS is relatively good and worthy of protection.

The Bankenveld is a fire climax grassland of potential savanna. If fire was kept out for long enough it would eventually become an Acacia caffra dominated savanna. Patches of grassland between ridges and outcrops are kept open by frost and frequent fires. There is a wide variety of grass species, mostly sour grass that loses nutritive value and palatability in winter. Many species are well adapted to fire. The area is rich in flowering plants with many geophytes that may require regular fires for propagation.

Exposure to multiple, predictable, and recurrent natural hazards is exacerbated by on-going climate change. The most common natural hazards are floods, droughts, and threats from unplanned fires. These hazards pose risks to residents and communities, employees and site visitors, risks to national heritage sites and resources (potential threats to the Outstanding Universal Value of the site), and risks to property. They also affect the world heritage property's ability to operate, conserve the heritage resources, serve the communities and public, and protect its assets. The local communities' high level of poverty, lack of livelihood and income generating opportunities, as well as chronic health problems, adds to the world heritage site's vulnerability toward managing disaster-related risks. Management of these risks through a formal Natural Resources Management (NRM) programme is therefore necessary for effective management of the world heritage site. The jobs and services the COHWHS provide, the safety of the workplace and other benefits all depend on the extent to which the Institution can manage these risks.

Fire is therefore an essential element in land management in the COHWHS as well as in the control of Alien and Invasive Plant Species (AIPs). Unplanned and uncontrolled fires are one of the major causes of the spread of IAPs. Fire needs to be utilized more consciously and more frequently as a management tool in the control of IAPs. Burning operations need to be timed to coincide with clearing operations. This program is needed to support the COHWHS with the implementation of NRM functions, specifically including Integrated Fire Management (IFM) in collaboration with the relevant Fire Protection Associations (FPAs). In addition to IFM, the NRM programme includes a range of integrated natural resource management focused activities like veld and vegetation management (functions like alien invasive control and eradication, vegetation thinning, bush encroachment control, hoeing, slashing, pruning, etc.), rangeland and landscape management functions like vegetation rehabilitation and restoration, erosion, and waste management functions.

The service provider will therefore be required to undertake and manage a range of Natural Resource Management activities, including Integrated Fire Management activities, such as: fire preparation and prevention (burning of firebreaks, rapid suppression), and controlled block burning (the deliberate burning of large blocks of land when the vegetation is deemed suitable for burning). Block burning is a particularly important tool in the management of Invasive Alien Plants Species. Additional NRM functions that are required include: vegetation management functions (comprising of functions such as alien invasive control and eradication etc.) and landscape management functions (comprising of activities such as vegetation rehabilitation and restoration), erosion and soil management.

In addition to the abovementioned activities, the service provider will also be required to perform other Natural Resource Management related activities including Alien and Invasive Plant Species control and eradication, weed control, vegetation management in the road reserve; vegetation management and maintenance of the National Heritage Sites and General Protected Sites and fuel load reduction activities.

It is on this basis that the COHWHS is commissioning the implementation of the NRM programme to demonstrate its commitment to managing risks to an acceptable level as it endeavours to fulfil its mandate in terms of the World Heritage Convention.

For the purposes of this Terms of Reference (ToR), the NRM Programme as described more fully under the Scope of Work and Deliverables shall constitute “the Project”.

4. SCOPE OF WORK

4.1. EXPECTED OUTPUTS AND DELIVERABLES

The proposal submitted must describe all tasks, proposed methodologies, resources, inputs required and planned outputs together with financial implications for implementation.

The tasks of the Natural Resources Management crew at the COHWHS will be used for preparation and prevention (burning of firebreaks, rapid suppression), and in controlled block burning (the deliberate burning of large blocks of land when the vegetation is deemed suitable for burning). Block burning is a particularly important tool in the management of Invasive Alien Plants. The crew will also perform other integrated fire and natural resource management related activities e.g. alien weed control, road maintenance, fossil site maintenance and fuel load reduction.

The Service Provider is expected to issue and control Personal Protective Equipment (Hereinafter referred to as PPE).
