1. PURPOSE

1.1 To appoint a service provider to undertake:

1.1.1 Develop a detailed inventory study identifying, outlining and quantifying relevant and ongoing activities, useful data sources on the production, distribution, uses and uses per sector and articles or components, import and exports of perfluorohexane sulfonic acid, its salts and perfluorohexane-related compounds, dechlorane plus and UV-328 for a period between 2011 to 2020;

1.1.2 Develop a socioeconomic analysis report assessing benefits and costs of regulating chemicals through control measures available under the Stockholm Convention (Annexes A, B, C and Article 6), information on possible technical and economically feasible alternatives and impacts on society implementing possible control measures; and

1.1.3 Develop a phase-out plan and a national implementation plan for Perfluorohexane sulfonic (PFHxS), its salts and Perfluorohexane-related compounds, Dechlorane Plus and UV-328 that will effectively protect the environment from POPs and to ensure a clean circular economy.

2. INTRODUCTION AND BACKGROUND

2.1 The Stockholm Convention (SC) on Persistent Organic Pollutants (POPs) was signed in 2001 and adopted in 2004, with the objectives of protecting human health and the environment from persistent organic pollutants. South Africa ratified the Convention, and it is a Party. It has 184 Parties.

2.2 The defining characteristics of POPs are compounds with high toxicity, persistence in the environment, ability to migration in food chains and high bioaccumulation potential, adverse effects to human health and/or environment, and potential for long-range environmental transport.

2.3 Many POPs were once commonly produced for a range of purposes including agriculture, vector management associated with disease control, manufacturing and industrial processes. Unintentional produced formed and released from thermal processes involving organic matter and chlorine as a result of incomplete combustion or chemical reaction. The highest contributor is open burning (in particular waste) followed by waste incineration (including co-incineration of municipal, hazardous or medical waste or sewage sludge); thermal processes in metallurgical industry (i.e. secondary copper production, sinter plants in the iron and steel industry, secondary aluminium production, secondary zinc production); heat and power generation; mineral production; transportation; chemicals and consumer products; waste disposal, etc. as the highly dominant sources of release to air. Today many chemicals in use have

POPs-like/PBT properties and many of them are used in consumer goods (e.g., electrical and electronic equipments (EEE), furniture, textiles, synthetic carpets, paper, and care products), where PBTs in products pose a risk for human health, the environment and the recycling/recovery flows.

2.4 The SC commits governments to protect human health and the environment by reducing and where feasible, eliminating the production and environmental release of chemicals listed under the Convention called POPs. To date, thirty (30) POPs, which covers thousands of related chemicals, are listed in the Annexes A (that means elimination of the production, use, export and import of the chemical) , B (i.e. that means restriction of the production, use, export and import of the chemical, with specified acceptable purposes for continue use) and C (i.e. that means is only applicable to unintentionally produced chemicals- the chemical will be would become subject to measures to prevent, reduce or eliminate the unintentional formation and releases of the chemical) to the legally binding Stockholm Convention. The listing of the chemical in Annexes A, B and/or C also make the chemical subject to the control provisions of Article 6 on stockpiles and waste. The objectives of the Stockholm Convection are 3-fold, and they are:

2.4.1 To protect human health and the environment from the effects of these POPs by focusing on three broad areas, namely: (i) intentionally produced and used POPs; (ii) unintentionally produced or by-product POPs; and (iii) POPs in stockpiles and wastes.

2.4.2 To sets out a range of control measures for listed POPs, especially those used as pesticides, for industrial purposes or are unintentionally produced in industrial processes, either Annex A or B and/or C of the Convention in order to reduce and, where feasible, eliminate POPs releases, including emissions of by-product POPs or through unintentional releases. Listing is according to how each is produced, and the level of restriction required. The final decision to include a nominated chemical as a POP in the Convention with or without exemptions, and secondly in which annex it is listed, is made by the COP. The Convention initially included 12 substances or groups of substances (sometimes referred to as "the dirty dozen") and has subsequently amended in 2009, 2011, 2013, 2015, 2017 and 2019 adding 16 additional substances or groups of substances, with some under multiple annexes.

2.4.3 To ensure the sound management of stockpiles and wastes that consist, contain or are contaminated by POPs. Any chemical which is listed in Annex A or B attracts obligations under Article 6 of the Convention regarding reducing or eliminating releases from stockpiles and wastes. This includes: (i) Managing stockpiles, as appropriate, in a safe, efficient and environmentally sound manner; (ii) Taking appropriate measures so that wastes, including products and articles upon becoming waste, are handled, collected transported and stored in an environmentally sound manner; and (iii) Taking appropriate measures so that wastes, including products and articles upon becoming waste, are disposed of or destroyed.

- 2.5. The Article 8 of the Convention provides for the addition of new POPs through an open, transparent, science-based process. A POPs Review Committee (POPRC) of experts advises Parties on the application of the science-based criteria and procedures for assessing chemicals that have been nominated for inclusion in the Convention.

Proposals are submitted by Parties nominating each of the chemicals for listing under the Stockholm Convention. Those proposals are assessed by the POPRC under Annexes D, E, and F Proposals put forward for consideration by the POPRC must go through several stages as required under Annexes D, E and F of the Convention in terms of Article 8:

- 2.5.1. Annex D - assessment of the chemical's persistence in the environment, its ability to bioaccumulate, potential for long-range transport and its adverse effects on human health or the environment (i.e., toxicological relevance and threat to human health, biota/wildlife).
- 2.5.2. Annex E – preparation of a risk profile which covers details on sources (production data, uses and releases), hazard assessment, environmental fate, monitoring data, exposure, risk evaluation and status of the chemical under international conventions. As well as the relevance of co-pollutants and affected waste.
- 2.5.3. Annex F – a socio-economic evaluation covering efficacy and efficiency of control measures, alternative products and processes, impact on society of implementing control measures, waste disposal implications, access to information and public education, status of control and monitoring capacity and any national or regional control actions. The evaluation also assesses the preliminary consideration on links to related SDGs.

- 2.6. The process of identifying emerging chemicals as POPs and listing them under the SC can be summarized in 5 steps: Perflurohexane sulfonic (PFHxS), its salts and Perflurohexane-related compounds, Dechlorane Plus and UV-328

- 2.6.1. A Party submits a proposal containing information and evidence for the POP Criteria to the Secretariat
- 2.6.2. The POPs Review Committee (POPROC) examines the proposal, determines that the screening POP Criteria are fulfilled.
- 2.6.3. Invites Parties to submit information for the development of risk profile. On the basis of risk profile, the POPROC determines that the chemical is likely to lead to significant adverse human health and/or environmental effects such that global action is warranted.

2.6.4. Next, the POPROC invites Parties to submit information about the socioeconomic considerations and develops a risk management evaluation before recommending the chemical to the Conference of the Parties (COP) for listing

2.6.5. The COP decides on listing the chemical and specifies the related measures.

3. OBJECTIVES

3.1. For the three (3) industrial POPs (i.e., Perfluorohexane sulfonic (PFHxS), its salts and Perfluorohexane-related compounds, Dechlorane Plus and UV-328) the Professional Service Provider is expected to:

3.1.1. Develop a detailed inventory study identifying, outlining, and quantifying relevant and ongoing activities, useful data sources on the production, distribution, uses and uses per sector and articles or components, import and exports, for a period between 2011 to 2020.

3.1.2. Develop a socioeconomic analysis report assessing benefits and costs of regulating chemicals through control measures available under the Stockholm Convention (Annexes A, B, C and Article 6), information on possible technical and economically feasible alternatives and impacts on society implementing possible control measures.

3.1.3. Conduct a stakeholder map and engagement with relevant stakeholders within the chemicals sector with special reference to those involved in uses per sector and article or component for the 3 industrial POPs i.e., Perfluorohexane sulfonic (PFHxS), its salts and Perfluorohexane-related compounds, Dechlorane Plus and UV-328 etc.; and

3.1.4. Develop a phase-out plan and a national implementation plan to effectively protect the environment from POPs and to ensure a clean circular economy

4. SCOPE AND EXTENT OF WORK

4.1. The Professional Service Provider will be expected to perform the following activities-

4.1.1. Inventory Study and status quo: Compile a desk top study that outlines the following-

- Compile a status quo report outlining the production, manufacturing, sales, distribution, use, storage, transport, import, export, removal, and emissions in the environment of Perfluorohexane sulfonic (PFHxS), its salts and Perfluorohexane-related compounds, Dechlorane Plus and UV-328 since 2011 to 2020, outlining or quantifying the corresponding environmental and socioeconomic impacts.

- Trends on quantities or volumes of Perfluorohexane sulfonic (PFHxS), its salts and Perfluorohexane-related compounds, Dechlorane Plus and UV-328 imported and exported, country of import and export from 2011 to 2020. This should include all the importer details and relevant import requirements such as but not limited to permitting, legislative/regulatory, tariff codes, pricing, etc.
- Trends on the uses and use sectors Perfluorohexane sulfonic (PFHxS), its salts and Perfluorohexane-related compounds, Dechlorane Plus and UV-328
- Inventory of releases of Perfluorohexane sulfonic (PFHxS), its salts and Perfluorohexane-related compounds, Dechlorane Plus and UV-328 to the environment and trends on emissions (i.e., in soil, water, air, etc).
- Identifying POPs sources and assessment of quantities of existing or discharged quantities in the environment. As well as the inventory of stocks and contaminated sites and products, the assessment of opportunities for disposal, recycling, etc
- Assessment of enforcement capacity to ensure compliance. An overview of assessment of the regulatory controls, chemical analytical reference laboratories and needs and options for strengthening them.

4.1.2. Socioeconomic consideration / analysis: This includes socio-economic considerations associated with possible control measures available under the Stockholm Convention Annexes A, B and C (elimination, phase-out, restriction), information on possible alternative to use (emphasising the technical and economic feasibility of potential alternatives) and the impact on society implementing possible control measures. assessment for the 3 industrial chemicals, namely: Perfluorohexane sulfonic (PFHxS), its salts and Perfluorohexane-related compounds, Dechlorane Plus and UV-328. The Service Provider should also provide the following –

- Four Control measures available under Stockholm Convention Control which encompasses full range of options management and elimination. Indicate possible control measure that could be undertaken and exemptions of uses that could be considered as well as the duration to be considered for exemption and the accompanying mitigations. Provide socio-economic considerations associated with possible control measures.
 - Annex A – Elimination of production, distribution, and sales, uses, export and import
 - Annex B – Restriction of use, import and export of the chemical
 - Annex C – Unintentionally produced
 - Article 6 – stockpile and waste

- Information on possible alternatives to use for the 3 chemicals. Evaluation of existence of technically and economically feasible cost-effective alternatives. Development of a favourable hazard profile of alternatives to avoid regrettable substitution and subsequent regulatory action on alternatives. Determination of need for the introduction of technologies, including technology transfer, possibilities of developing indigenous alternatives and assessment of the costs and benefits of the management options. A situational analysis of possible alternatives would highlight:
 - Technical feasibility
 - Socio-Economic feasibility
 - Legal feasibility
- Impact on society from implementing possible control measures
 - Impact assessment approach to help inform policy makers of possible impacts associated with elimination and elimination with or without exemption of uses, restriction, and phase-out and/or ban of the chemicals. Impacts on the environment and human health and economic impacts related to costs of substitution and enforceability.
- Furthermore, market feasibility, overall risk assessment, the cost and benefit analysis, as well as the SWOT analysis for all stakeholders in the industry, and a stakeholder engagement matrix/engagement process.

4.1.3. Phase-out plan and national implementation plan: This encompasses the formulation of a detailed a national implementation plan and specific action plan, identification of management options including phasing out and phase-out plans and risk reduction options to effectively protect human health and the environment from POPs and ensure a clean circular economy for Perfluorohexane sulfonic (PFHxS), its salts and Perfluorohexane-related compounds, Dechlorane Plus and UV-328.

- The professional Service Provider is not limited to covering the points mentioned above.

4.1.4. Stakeholder Engagement: Conduct stakeholder engagement (including stakeholder map and SWOT for each stakeholder) with relevant stakeholders within the chemicals sector with special reference to those involved in uses or use per sector for the Perfluorohexane sulfonic (PFHxS), its salts and Perfluorohexane-related compounds, Dechlorane Plus and UV-328, etc. A stakeholder report is required at the end of the project, highlighting all the workshops, stakeholder database, interviews, meetings/discussion sessions, etc. that were held with the different stakeholders involved in this study.
