1. BACKGROUND

The agro-processing sector in Gauteng has the potential to become an industrial impetus that can create jobs and address some of the Province's macro-economic challenges. Agro-processing is defined as a manufacturing subdivision, which processes raw materials and intermediate products derived from primary production and cultivation in the agricultural sector. This includes products that originate from agriculture, forestry, and fisheries¹. In South Africa, several government interventions and investments are geared towards growing this industry, thus giving a solid foundation for the empowerment of stakeholders, such as smallholder enterprises to participate in the mainstream economy of the Province.

One of the most important features of any industry is the degree to which it is able to generate demand for the products of other industries. Agro-processing is known for its strong up- and downstream linkages. Upstream, the sector links to primary agriculture across a variety of farming activities and products. Downstream, agro-processing outputs are both intermediate products to which further value is added and final goods that are marketed through wholesale and retail chains.

The key benefits that will be realised through the implementation of the Gauteng Agro-processing Strategy includes:

- Job opportunities in the entire value chain of the agriculture sector
- Promotion and investment in the agro-processing sector of the Gauteng Province
- Improvement in competitiveness of the local economy by optimally using the local resource base and locational advantages
- Stronger integration between the different economic sectors of the Province
- Enhancement of local businesses/enterprises and skills development for the agro-processing industries
- Promotion of overall growth and development of the agro-processing industries.

The Gauteng Department of Agriculture and Rural Development (GDARDE) in the sixth (6th) administration, has developed 4 priority areas in line with the State of the Province Address (SOPA) delivered by Premier David Makhura, namely:

- Commercialisation of the agri-food value chain
- Agroprocessing

¹ Food and Agriculture Organization of the United Nations. 1997. The State of Food and Agriculture 1997 <http://www.fao.org/docrep/w5800e/w5800e00.htm>

- Environmental Sustainability
- Development of a Solidarity Economy

In line with the above priorities, in particular the Commercialisation of the agri-food value chain and agroprocessing, the Department has taken a decision to support agroprocessing entrepreneurs in the Province with machinery and equipment necessary to enhance their businesses. These priorities are in line with the rowing Gauteng Together (GGT) 2030 programme.

2. DEFINITION OF AGRO PROCESSING

A common definition of agroprocessing refers to the subset of manufacturing that processes raw materials and intermediate products derived from the agricultural sector. Agroprocessing industry thus means transforming products originating from agriculture, forestry and fisheries into readily consumable products. Generally, the agroprocessing techniques include blanching, dehydrating, canning, freezing, fermenting and pickling, and irradiating. However, a broader definition of agroprocessing refers to all post-harvest activities ranging from sorting, cleaning and packaging to activities having to do with livestock slaughter, cold storage and transportation to markets.

2.1 GAUTENG AGRO-PROCESSING INDUSTRY

The distinction between primary agricultural production and manufacturing is narrowing as we see increasing vertical integration from primary agriculture into agro-processing industries (Goulet, 2003).² In South Africa, agro-processing and, in particular, food processing has grown more rapidly than the overall economic growth rate, and more rapidly than manufacturing as a whole. The food processing value-add in 2014 (in constant 2010 prices) was 34% higher than in 2004, more than double the 15% increase in real value added by the manufacturing sector as a whole over the same period. Food processing is playing an increasingly important role in building manufacturing capabilities and driving growth.

The ability of agro-processing to “pull” overall economic growth is strengthened by its strong potential linkages with other industries. These include backward linkages extending to primary agriculture, the manufacture of capital equipment, and chemicals inputs, and forward linkages extending to packaging industries, chemicals industries, and services such as transport,

² Agro-processing is defined as the subset of manufacturing that processes raw materials and intermediate products derived from the agricultural sector, forestry and fisheries (FAO, 1997). It encompasses both food and non-food products, including leather, textiles, and paper and pulp. The most significant difference between agro-processing and other industrial subsectors is the perishable nature of the raw material, which affects location, transport, and storage decisions marketing and retail. As one of manufacturing's largest sub sectors, agro-processing holds significant capacity and potential to generate inclusive growth.

However, the agro-processing sector is still concentrated and characterised by significant barriers to entry and expansion. The concentration in agro-processing value chains has also been associated with anti-competitive conduct and supra-competitive pricing to the detriment of consumers (Ncube, Nkhnjera, Paremoer, & Zengeni, 2015).³ The National Development Plan identifies historically high levels of concentration in agricultural value chains, high and increasing levels of vertical integration between agriculture and agro-processing, access to infrastructure (specifically irrigation and farming equipment) and lack of access to consumer markets as significant constraints to entry and growth in the sector. The need to unlock markets, facilitate disruptive entrants and allow for greater economic participation is obviously a key concern in agro-processing value chains in particular and provides the backdrop against which the interventions in this sector strategy are proposed.

2.2 THE NEED FOR AGRO PROCESSING SUPPORT

The National Development Plan (NDP) and the Industrial Policy Action Plan (IPAP) identifies the potential of agroprocessing to spur growth and development through backward and forward linkages with other sectors of the economy. Furthermore, agroprocessing sector has highest employment multipliers in the economy. However, agroprocessing sector remains largely concentrated meaning entry and participation of small and medium enterprises remains limited. The contribution of small and medium enterprises (SMEs) towards national development objectives of reducing unemployment and poverty is well-documented emphasising the need for a focused approach by government to strategically support and develop manufacturing industry in general and agroprocessing industry in particular (NDP, 2013; IPAP, 2017).

3. OBJECTIVE

To provide entrepreneurial support to small and medium agroprocessors through investment in agroprocessing equipment and machinery to promote township economic revitalization. The equipment and machinery will be in three agroprocessing sub-sectors, namely grain processing, horticulture (fruit and vegetables) as well as meat processing.

³ For further discussion of barriers to entry in the agro-processing sector in South Africa see CCRED Working Paper 2016/1 available at <http://www.competition.org.za/working-papers/>

4. SCOPE OF WORK FOR THE OVERALL PROJECT

This terms of reference covers the technical requirements for the supply, delivery and installation of agroprocessing machinery and equipment, as outlined in the paragraph below.
