South Africa has one of the highest unemployment rates in the world which currently stands at more than 32,9% (Stats SA), hence job creation and skills development have remained one of the top priorities of the South African National Government. The Expanded Public Works Programme (EPWP) is one of Government's medium to long term strategies to reduce unemployment and alleviate poverty through creation of work opportunities using labor-intensive methods. The EPWP is also a strategy used by government to improve skills development through training, capacity development and on-the-job training of people involved in the programme.

2. DEPARTMENTAL AND PROGRAMME OVERVIEW

The Department of Economic Development, Tourism and Environment Affairs is currently implementing an EPWP programme (Invasive Alien Species Programme) which serves as one of its response to job creation and skills development. For this purpose, the Department currently implements 41 EPWP projects that deal with the control and management of alien plants within various prioritized local municipalities of the province. The Invasive Alien Species Programme (IASP) is constituted within the National Government's Expanded Public Works Programme framework which aim to address socio-economic challenges being experienced, especially within rural areas. Recruitment of project participants is targeted to the poor and unemployed communities mainly from rural areas and priority is given to (60%) women, (55%) youth, and (2%) people living with disabilities. The EPWP projects assist the Department to achieve its environmental mandate of clearing invasive alien plants and thus achieving one of its environmental strategic goals.

3. IMPLEMENTATION OF EPWP TRAINING PROGRAMME WITHIN DEPARTMENT

In accordance with the National Skills Accord, training is considered a critical element within EPWP. Hence according to the Code of Good Practice for Special Public Works Projects read together with the Ministerial Determination, workers employed in EPWP projects are expected to receive training. The training of EPWP participants is informed by the lack of skills that is still being experienced by many South African citizens. Furthermore, the South African government has introduced a number of policies and prescripts to ensure the lack of skill base in the country is addressed. However, implementation of many of the policies and prescripts is still lacking, hence training of EPWP participants remains the most critical element of the Department. Among the many reasons why training of EPWP participants is critical are the following:

- ✓ The EPWP programmes employs people from rural communities that may not have any background on the required to be undertaken by the project teams, hence the provision of training is critical as it can assist the participants to learn and perform to their assigned duties effectively and efficiently.
- ✓ Some EPWP projects their work activities involves handling of chemicals and herbicides, as a result, the Department must adhere to numerous prescripts which regulate the use of such chemicals. One of the prescripts is the Occupational Health and Safety Act [OHS] (Act No. 85 of 1993). This prescript mandate the employer (in this case the Department, by extension) to provide critical accredited trainings to persons handling the chemicals and herbicides.
- ✓ OHS Act 85 of 1993 stipulates that the health and safety of an employee is the employer's responsibility and also to ensure a safe working environment. Project workers involved in EPWP programmes general conduct their work activities in remote, harsh and dangerous environments this therefore compels the Department to ensure there is a provision of First Aider on site.

- ✓ As it is the responsibility of the employers in South Africa to ensure that they take necessary steps in the workplace to ensure that employees receive quick and efficient first aid emergency care, particularly in the event of an injury or medical work emergency. It thus critical that EPWP project worker receives training on what is first aid, the importance of first aid training, and selecting a designated first aider by doing so the employer can ensure a safe and healthy working environment for all.
- ✓ The Basic First Aid training is aimed at introducing EPWP project workers to practical skills and understanding on how to provide appropriate, immediate and effective first aid care if the need arises given that they work in remote areas. The main objective is to build the capacities and equip them with essential knowledge and skills of providing basic life support service of accidental injuries.
- ✓ Having a trained First Aider on the project site benefits both the employer and employee. The main benefit being legal compliance. Other benefits include; the severity of an injury can be reduced; severe allergic reactions, deaths from a choking situation, heart attacks can be minimized; and employee absenteeism or productivity loss will be minimised.
- ✓ The provision of training courses will also enable the EPWP participants to access better employment opportunities after they exit the Departmental EPWP programmes.
- ✓ Overall, the provision of training will ensure that the Departmental EPW Programme complies with various national prescripts that govern many of the activities that the EPWP projects will be involved with.

4. RATIONALE OF THE PROJECT

As earlier mentioned, the Department (EDTEA) currently implements 41 EPWP IASP projects that deal with the control and management of alien plants within the KZN province. Resulting from the 41 projects, the Department is able to create more than 7725 jobs annual and contribute to the participant's skills development. However, these objectives can only be achieved through having a structured training programme for the beneficiaries involved. Hence the need to solicit an accredited professional service provider that would assist the Department to train the EPWP participants. The required two-day course will equip project participants with the relevant skillset that will provide them with necessary knowledge and understanding to control weeds using herbicides.

5. PURPOSE AND OBJECTIVES OF THE TERMS OF REFERENCE
