Bulls decide two heads better than one in URC

Coetzee and Nortje will head the leadership team in upcoming championship

GEORGE BYRON

The Bulls have decided two heads will be better than one in leadership roles when they kick off their United Rugby Championship campaign against Scarlets at Loftus on Saturday.

Bulls director of rugby Jake White has named Marcell Coetzee and Ruan Nortje as co-captains to lead his team's charge for glory in what will be a punishing schedule of European matches.

This weekend's opening round of URC fixtures almost slipped under the radar as the rugby fraternity focuses on the Springboks' epic bid for back-to-back World Cup titles.

While the Boks' World Cup semifinal against old foes England in Paris on Saturday will steal the headlines, the Lions, Stormers, Sharks and Bulls will kick off their URC campaigns.

In the first of Saturday's encounters, the Stormers side travel to Ellis Park to face the Lions (4.05pm) and that will be followed by a tense clash between Munster and the Sharks in Limerick (6.15pm).

On Sunday the Bulls will be looking for maximum points when they face a dangerous Scarlets outfit at Loftus (3pm).

"Marcell Coetzee and Ruan Nortje are experienced campaigners who understand the demands of playing in European competitions and they have done well in leading us over the last few seasons," White said.

"Ruan stepped up last season when Marcell took his sabbatical and when he returned, the two of them continued to collaborate until the end of the season

"Fortunately for me, this was an easy decision to make because Marcell and Ruan truly embody what it means to be a Bulls player."
