1. BACKGROUND

- 1.1 As part of its operations, the South African Social Security Agency (SASSA) Shreds / destroys and handles a significant amount of documentation. - 1.2 Proper management and disposal of these documents is crucial to maintain compliance with regulatory standards, protect sensitive information, and ensure efficient office operations. To address this ongoing need, SASSA requires a reliable service provider to collect wastepaper from its Head Office.

All personnel assigned to the collection process should be properly trained in handling confidential documents, adhering to privacy and security protocols during collection and transportation. Furthermore, the service provider should have contingency plans in place to accommodate fluctuations in the volume of wastepaper, especially in instances where operational needs require the collection of more than the typical weekly amount. To maintain accountability and compliance, all collections should be conducted in the presence of a SASSA official.
