1. BACKGROUND

The Private Security Industry Regulatory Authority ("PSiRA") seeks to appoint a suitably qualified service provider to design, develop, host, maintain and support a modern corporate website that will serve as a central digital platform for public communication, stakeholder engagement, information sharing and service accessibility.

The current digital environment requires organisations to maintain websites that are secure, accessible, mobile-friendly, content-rich and easy to manage. A corporate website is often the first point of contact for members of the public, regulated entities, partners, government stakeholders, media, service providers and prospective employees. It is therefore essential that the website presents information in a professional, credible and user-friendly manner.

The proposed website must support the organisation's mandate by providing clear access to institutional information, services, news, media releases, events, publications, procurement opportunities, vacancies, contact information and other key resources. It must also enable the organisation to publish timely updates and communicate effectively with its stakeholders.

The appointed service provider will be expected to deliver a solution that is not merely visually appealing, but also technically robust, easy to administer, compliant with relevant legislation, and capable of supporting the organisation's future digital transformation requirements.

2. PURPOSE

- 2.1 The purpose of this RFQ is to appoint a suitably qualified service provider to design, develop, test, deploy, and support a modern, secure, responsive, and user-friendly website.
- 2.2 The proposed website must be visually professional, easy to navigate, accessible across devices, secure, and simple for authorised staff to update through a content management system.
- 2.3 At the end of the six-month development and support period, full ownership, administration rights, source code, website files, databases, documentation, credentials, licenses where applicable, and all related intellectual property developed for the website must be formally transferred to PSiRA. Thereafter, PSiRA will assume responsibility for the ongoing management, administration, content updates and maintenance of the website using its internal resources.

- 2.4 The appointed service provider will therefore be required to ensure that the website is developed in a manner that enables effective handover, internal administration and long-term sustainability by PSiRA.

3. PROJECT OBJECTIVES

- 3.1 Provides a modern, credible and professional online presence.
